- ¹ Restricted-scope Medi-Cal includes emergency and pregnancy-related services. Depending on immigrant status, restricted Medi-Cal may also include care and services related to an emergency medical condition (including dialysis services, but not related to an organ transplant procedure) and long term care.
- ² Family PACT provides comprehensive family planning services and is available to undocumented youth and expecting undocumented young parents.
- ³ Formerly the Access for Infants and Mothers (AIM) program, Medi-Cal Access Program (MCAP) provides low cost affordable health coverage for middle-income pregnant women, including undocumented young mothers. MCAP does not provide Medi-Cal access.
- ⁴ A refugee is a noncitizen given permission to come to the U.S. because he or she was persecuted, or has a well-founded fear of being persecuted (on account of race, nationality, religion, political opinion, or membership to a particular social group) in his or her home country. A refugee is granted the right to live and work in the U.S. and after a one-year period, may apply to become a lawful permanent resident (LPR). An asylee is a person who has applied for and been granted asylum. In the United States, asylees may apply for lawful permanent resident (LPR) status one year after they were granted asylum.
- ⁵ PRUCOL refers to individuals who are “permanently residing under color of law.” PRUCOL is not an immigration status, but is a benefit eligibility category, which generally covers individuals whose presence in the U.S. is known by U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS), and USCIS does not have the intent to remove or deport them. Many but not all individuals who are PRUCOL have a status that falls within the U.S. Department of Health and Human Service’s “lawful presence” definition for purposes of federal health coverage programs. See, 45 C.F.R. 152.2.
- ⁶ In June 2012, the U.S. Department of Homeland Security created the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA) program. DACA provides temporary relief from deportation and a work permit for young immigrants who meet certain requirements. Grants of deferred action are available for two year renewable periods.
- ⁷ Survivors of trafficking who are granted T non-immigrant status are authorized to remain and work in the United States. Survivors of serious crimes who are granted U non-immigrant status are authorized to remain and work in the United States. After three years, individuals granted T or U non-immigrant status can apply to adjust to lawful permanent resident (LPR) status. [Survivors of trafficking who are certified by the Office of Refugee Resettlement may be eligible for federal benefits to the same extent as refugees. In California, survivors of trafficking and applicants for U non-immigrant status may be eligible for state or local benefits prior to obtaining T or U status.]
- ⁸ Non-immigrant visa holders have official authorization to enter the U.S. for a range of different purposes, for example: (1) B-2- who are visitors for pleasure; (2) F- who are students; (3) H- who are temporary workers; (4) J- who are exchange students or trainees
- ⁹ Some non-immigrant visa holders may have trouble meeting the state residency requirements. It is advisable that non-immigrant visa holders consult with an immigration attorney prior to seeking benefits that require state residency.
- ¹⁰ Non-immigrant visa holders may qualify for Covered California if they can meet the state residency requirements. It is advisable that non-immigrant visa holders consult with an immigration attorney prior to seeking benefits that require state residency.
- ¹¹ Income-eligible pregnant women are eligible for Medi-Cal that covers all medically necessary services, regardless of immigration status. They continue to be eligible on the first day of the month following the month in which the pregnancy ends until the last day of the month in which the 60th day postpartum occurs.
- ¹² Undocumented immigrants are noncitizens who are not lawfully present in the U.S. They may have entered the U.S. without inspection or have been admitted lawfully but their status has since expired or been revoked.
- ¹³ Undocumented immigrant adults older than 25 are not eligible for full-scope Medi-Cal; however undocumented parents may have eligible family members, including children. Lawfully present children of undocumented immigrants should be screened for Medi-Cal eligibility.
- ¹⁴ Undocumented immigrants are not eligible for Covered California. However, they may have children who are eligible. Eligible children of undocumented parents should be screened for Covered California.
- ¹⁵ Undocumented children and youth are noncitizens who are not lawfully present in the U.S. They may have entered the U.S. without inspection or have been admitted lawfully but their status has since expired or been revoked. Undocumented children are between the ages of 0-18 and undocumented youth are between the ages of 19-25. Proof of California residency will be required and income eligibility limits apply.
